"I savor every day I have with friends. Friends have brought me an amazingly rich and happy life. I have cat friends and human friends and I love them all. Humans can be complicated but I guess they say the same thing about cats actually. It's just that humans fidget too much. You need to learn the gift of being settled in a moment. We cats are great at that. And when I get a human who wants to just sit and be settled with me..... ahh... that is heavenly. I am grateful for every opportunity that has been given to me. There was a time I was nearing death alone and cold without a single friend and without a home. There is not one single thing that I am not grateful for every day. And I am grateful that you asked me this question so that I could share my thanks."
