“What is there not to be grateful for when you are as stunning as I am? I know that sounds arrogant but truly I am grateful for my whole life. I have not been as loving as I always could be but in my younger times I went through a lot of medical issues. It was painful. It took a long time before I could grow up and be a normal cat. Now, what I like best is to bring out the best in my human friends. I feel like I am here for big work. Humans come in to see me with such heaviness in their hearts. I won’t allow that to stay there. Nope. If they come to see me, we are going to just lighten up and search for a brighter day. That is what I do. And I am happy to share that with whoever will stop for a second and be with me.”
