“I am grateful for warm blankets to snuggle in. I am grateful to know the soft touch of a gentle hand. I am grateful for all of my cat friends. And, I am forever grateful to the humans who saved my life and gave me such an amazing place to live. No one pushes me to be something I cannot be. And with that freedom I have started finding pieces of myself I didn’t even know were there. I love my friend Odin. When he came in our room to live, I knew I had found a friend. He reminded me of myself when I came in. So I immediately tried to comfort him and let him know how safe this place is. Ever since then, he has been my buddy. We understand one another. I think I am most grateful for true friendship. Nothing feels as good as sharing something with someone who truly understands you, even in hard times.”
